Description G2Home is an offline map application that allows a user to create maps of their neighborhood, even when they have no mobile network access. The app is based on Google Maps, but is customized for certain regions and allows a user to share their geo-data. It is available for iOS and Android devices. The application is very simple to use, with an interface similar to Google Maps. G2Home is mobile-friendly and offers basic features to help a user create maps of their neighborhood. For instance, a user can create a map of their street or an entire city, insert the boundaries for the selected area, add points of interest, and generate a map of the location of their address. Points of interest can be added, and the entire location can be connected to a direction and distance to a selected location. The app is free to use and requires no subscription to make use of the various features. There are, however, a few limitations to the app. For instance, one can only import ZIP code data from their address for information; there is no way to import other addresses. Additionally, the app is not able to recognize the addresses of new ZIP codes or updates to existing ones. The app is also not mobile-friendly.

Take a look at this amazing app. With such a wide array of features, it's perfect for homes, offices, restaurants and more.
